FRESHMEN SEE COLLEGE LIFE FROM INSIDE

Program For Freshman Week Carried Out With Success

FACULTY ENTERTAIN

Freshman Week started off with more than its usual pep and vigor this year, with plans for the biggest year the college has ever known, in the light of the incoming Freshman class.

Members of the Staff returned and Freshmen came in to find a program which promises a week of fun and enjoyment, as well as preliminary instruction waiting for them.

The program for the week has been followed thus far with comparative success. The Thursday night reception was unusually animated, and was well presented. Friday night too was more than successful. The coming days hold promises of as much or more for the Freshmen.

The complete program for Freshman Week is as follows:

Tuesday, September 10

Bundy Hall open to members of the Freshman Week Staff.

Wednesday, September 11

Retreat—Men of the Staff with members of the administration.

Women members of the Staff arrive during afternoon.

3:00 Faculty Meeting.

5:00 Faculty dinner on West Campus.

6:00 Staff dinner in dining room.

8:00 Freshman Week Staff meeting.

Thursday, September 12

All Freshmen arrive at the college and the Staff will be on duty.

6:00 Dinner in Earlham Hall for all Freshmen, including Day Freshmen, faculty members and their wives, and the staff members.

IMPROVEMENTS ON CAMPUS APPARENT

Bundy Hall Is Redecorated for Welcome of Freshmen Men

TRACK IS RESURFACED

Several improvements have been made about the buildings and campus during the summer. The most noticeable is the rejuvenation of Bundy Hall.

The inside of the building has been completely gone over from the basement to the third floor. The rooms, halls, floors and lobby have all been improved. Even the stairs are new on the first and second floors.

Every room in the building has been redecorated, the floors refinished, the wood work painted or varnished, and an extension cord placed at the disposal of the occupant. The hall floors have been refinished and varnished and the walls redecorated.

The lobby has been replastered, the radiators painted, the floors varnished, and other general improvements made. All in all we would say that Bundy looks very nice.

Another very noticeable improvement, especially to the track men, is the resurfacing of the running track. Workmen have been busy all summer screening cinders, spreading them on the track, rolling them down, and mixing clay with them to make a better surface. This improvement will be welcomed by any man who has been using the track, and should greatly aid the track team next Spring.

WELCOME TO THE WOMEN STUDENTS

It is a great joy to welcome the incoming Freshmen women to Earlham College and to start with you upon your adventure into the world of new contacts. Here, as in every changing situation of your life, some adjustments will be easy; some more difficult. You will want to prove to yourself, to the faculty and your fellow students as an outstanding personality, a goal that is attained by the ability to meet constantly evolving situations adequately.

You choose now, as at no other period of your life, whether you will limit yourself to that which is acceptable, or whether you constantly seek that which is the best, academically, socially, spiritually.

The organization of the college is so arranged that the dean of women has the opportunity of being not only your social, but also your academic advisor, and I want you to feel how sincerely I desire to aid you and to make your year a successful and happy one.

NEW FACULTY MEMBERS ADDED FOR SCHOOL YEAR

Twelve New Members Added; Members of Class of '29 Will Assist in Chemistry Department

E. MERRILL ROOT RETURNS

We are happy to welcome the new faculty; we are glad they are here. This year Earlham adds quite a few new members to its teaching force.

William Cullen Dennis, A.B., A.M., LL.B., LL.D., international lawyer and university professor at Washington, D. C., has been elected to the presidency of Earlham College. This is a significant announcement, auguring well for the future of the college of which the president-elect is a distinguished alumnus.

Howard C. Morgan, who for the past ten years has been connected with the Junior College and High School of Kansas City, Kansas in the Department of Speech, is to be Assistant Professor of Speech at Earlham this year. He will have charge of Dramatics and will fill the vacancy left by Mr. Goodrich.

Professor Morgan graduated at the University of Kansas in 1918 with majors in English and Speech. In 1926 he took the Master of Arts degree at the University of Wisconsin, his graduate work including dramatics, pageantry, speech composition and speech correction. While completing his graduate work at Wisconsin he assisted in the speech department and was elected to membership in Pi Epsilon Delta, known better as National Collegiate Players, a chapter of which organization was installed at Earlham last year.

During the last five years Professor Morgan has been chairman of the Speech Department at the Kansas City Junior College, the Department having a faculty of four. When the American Drama League had its national convention in Kansas City, Missouri last year Professor Morgan produced a play before that group.

Dr. A. D. Biettel has been appointed to the position of Professor of Biblical Literature and Church History at Earlham this year.

Dr. Biettel received his Master's degree from the Oberlin Theological Seminary, and his degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the Divinity School of Chicago University. For two years he served as pastor of a Congregational church in Montana. He has had teaching experience at Finlay College, Finlay, Ohio, where he took his undergraduate work, in

GREETINGS TO THE NEW STUDENTS

It is my pleasant duty, in accordance with custom and tradition, on behalf of the trustees and faculty of the college to bid you welcome to Earlham through the columns of the Quaker Quill.

You have arrived at the stage, which, as a new student at Harvard, I once heard President Elliott describe in an address of welcome to the new students as the time "when study ceases to be a task and becomes an opportunity." As I listened to President Elliott make that statement I knew, alas, that it was not wholly descriptive of my case and I more than suspected that it was at least somewhat optimistic as respects a number of my fellow students. Nevertheless, as Lincoln once said, in substance, of some of the counsels of perfection of the Declaration of Independence, it represents the ideal constantly to be striven for, even if never wholly attained.

President Elliott's epigrammatic statement of this ideal helped me. I hand it on to you, in the hope that it may help you. With best wishes for a happy and fruitful year at Earlham.

WILLIAM C. DENNIS.

NEW MATERIAL REPORTS TO COACH ROSS

Abundant Material Introduced at First Practice of Year

FIVE LETTER MEN OUT

Five letter men and a wealth of new material reported to Coach M. O. Ross for the first official football practice of the present season.

Captain Johnson, end; Ellis, tackle; Reynolds, fullback; Tom Felix, halfback; and Young, halfback, will be the only lettermen back for the 1929 season, and the nucleus around which Coach Ross will build his grid machine.

Ralph Oesting and George Peacock are guards who have seen some work in the regular lineup, but neither has won a letter. However, last year's experience and splendid condition should make it possible for both of these candidates to see much service in the regular lineup.

Captain Johnson, who played end on last year's team, should enjoy his best grid season this year. Johnson is fast and a strong defensive player. He formerly starred with Technical High School and has had a great deal of valuable experience.

"Pinky" Ellis, sophomore tackle, will be back at his old position. Ellis was a real find as a Freshman last year and took great delight in smearing off-tackle smashes. He is a powerful lineman and with a year's experience behind him should prove a valuable man.

T. Felix, another back who gained recognition last season, probably will be shifted to quarter to fill the gap left by Miser. Felix is one of the best broken field runners ever to don a Quaker uniform and his ability to pass and kick places him in a line for triple threat honors.

Dwight Young, a back of some ability who has seen service in the past two years, should be seen at one of the half back posts. He is fairly fast and a good blocker.

Charles Peterson, of Jamaica, New York, who showed up so well in the closing minutes of the Butler game last year should prove to be a threat in the backfield. His speed and drive coupled with a little more experience

WELCOME TO FRESHMEN MEN

It is with pleasure that we again welcome a Freshman Class to Earlham College. The spirit with which we meet you during Freshman Week is indeed the ideal we hold for the entire year. It is the desire of the Administration and Faculty of Earlham that this spirit of cooperation and fellowship holds unbroken throughout a student's college career.

As advisor of Freshmen men, I wish to establish the type of friendship with you that will make our work together both profitable and pleasant. I trust that you will discover and that your experience will prove to you my availability and my constant willingness to assist you.

I wish for each one of you a college experience that transcends your present anticipation and that will bring truest happiness.

CLYDE A. MILNER.

NEW PRESIDENT ASSUMES DUTIES AS COLLEGE HEAD

International Lawyer Is Capable of Filling Position Admirably

GRADUATE OF EARLHAM

With the opening of college for the reception of the incoming Freshmen, William Cullen Dennis, new President of Earlham assumed his official duties.

Dr. Dennis is the son of the late David Worth Dennis, '73, beloved professor of biology at Earlham for many years, and Mattie Curl Dennis, 1885-86, a pioneer in the artistic and literary enterprises of Richmond.

The attainments of the new President, both scholarly and professionally are noteworthy. He received a part of his preparatory education in the Gymnasium at Bonn, Germany, and at the Royal High School of Edinburgh, Scotland.

After being graduated from Earlham College, at the age of 17 years, he went to Harvard University, where he received his bachelor's degree the following year, and his master's degree in 1898. In 1901, he was graduated from the Law School of Harvard.

Various Posts Held

From 1902 until 1909, he was a member successively of the faculties in the law departments of the University of Illinois, Stanford University, Columbia, and George Washington University.

For several years, he has been a member of the board of trustees of Byrn Mawr College. His alma mater conferred upon him the honorary degree of doctor of laws in 1911.

William Dennis established in 1906 a connection with the Government of the United States, which has led to a notable career of service. In that year he was made assistant solicitor to the Department of State. Important government commissions filled by him are as follows:

He was agent for the United States in the arbitration of Venezuela, before the International Tribunal at the Hague in 1909-1910; also for the United States in the Chamizal arbitration with Mexico before the International Tribunal Commission in 1910-1911; he was secretary to Chief Justice White, sole arbitrator in the Costa-Rica Panama arbitration, 1911-1914. In 1921-22 he was agent for the United States-Norway arbitration at the Hague; he was counsel for this government on the British-American Claims Commission at London. He served as general legal advisor to the American members on the Plebiscitary and Boundary Commission having to do with the Tacna-Arica arbitration between Peru and Chile in 1925-26.

CHANGES MADE IN CURRICULUM ARE VERY IMPORTANT

Additions to Department of Study Make Courses Offered Complete

NEW FEATURES IN SCHEDULE

A number of interesting changes have been made in the Earlham College curriculum for the coming year. Several departments are affected by these changes, which are indicative of the progress which is taking place constantly.

A course in "The Far East" in connection with the Department of History will be given under the direction of Professor Kissick. This is an upper class course and is a survey of the civilization of China and Japan in the 19th and 20th centuries.

Mr. John King, famous Richmond painter, will instruct the class of Drawing and Painting this year.

Another course will be added to the History Department for under class students. Mr. Heckman will teach a three-hour course in the History of Latin America. This course is an outline of the colonial expansion of Spain and Portugal to America. It treats the political, social and industrial development of these nations.

The introductory course for Freshmen given the second semester in former years will be given the first semester. This course has become a more complete attempt at Orientation, and the men and women will

And here we are! It's time for school to begin in earnest and the Freshmen have arrived for preliminary instruction in the art of going to college.

It is with a sense akin to reverence that we watch these new people come in and stroll across the campus. Slowly but surely everyone of them grows to be a part of us. By the time the upper classmen roll in these Freshmen will be firmly established here, and ready to help receive old students. The few days which have passed so swiftly have been more than valuable in acclimating all of us. No small amount of benefit has been derived and a great amount of enjoyment has been the outgrowth of these few days of getting acquainted.

The Class of 1933 is welcome to Earlham. The friends and associations which these new Freshmen make now are going to be permanent, life-long impressions. The service and help which each one of you render now in the attempt to make your college days pleasant and successful can not be over estimated.

Freshman Week is only valuable so long as the participants are receptive to and interested in its accomplishments. It is an individual matter to a certain extent, and dependent upon the attitude of each person.

Then here's to the Freshmen! Here's to the Class of 1933 with its Freshmen Week! Let's put it over with a bang and make this year the best we've ever known.

THIS COLLEGE BUSINESS

If we are to judge from recent articles in newspapers and magazines, we should be of the impression that college is the home of immorality, of laxity in administration, of irresponsible young men and women. And yet the surprising fact is that if these persons who so strenuously condemn college would interview the professors of colleges and universities, talk the matter over with the parents of these young people, learn to know personally these young men and women, they would find an entirely different situation. They would find among these people the truest and finest of the younger generation.

One of the first things which impressed me in the lectures of the Freshmen Week of our own class was the fact that college is living. Not only are we entering into preparation for our future lives, we are living just as surely as we shall be living in twenty-five years. You are the same sort of a man or woman as you are going to be. Let your life be in college, then, just as you want it to be in the years which are to follow your college years.

Every college and university campus is only a cross-section of the various communities represented on that campus. Earlham is a life by itself, and the service which you render to your community here, is fairly indicative of the service which you will probably render in the future.

College life is the representation of those three most important institutions, the school, the church, and the home.

College as dependent upon and related to the school owes a great debt to the constantly improved conditions in the elementary and high schools of the country. This raised standard of education is largely the result of the influence of colleges. Whereas large schools have increased teaching forces with better pay, the smaller school is generally able to compensate by providing a greater amount of personal attention. The debt which colleges and individual college students owe to their previous training is inestimable.

The church, too, particularly in a church college is responsible for college life to a great extent. Colleges and universities are often judged as responsible for youthful atheism. This fact may be true in that "a little knowledge is a dangerous thing," but firm and true religious faith is only strengthened by study. There is a firmness and strength in it which is built up, rather than destroyed by knowledge.

The home is by far the main force in its relation to and dependence upon the college. No young man or woman can go farther than his home allows him or encourages him to do. Fundamentally the youth is the product of the aspirations and hopes of his parents, limited only by the start in life which they have given him, biologically, mentally, and morally. An article in the September issue of "Good Housekeeping" endeavors to answer the question "Is My Daughter Safe at College?" Reta S. Halle, the author, replies, "Yes, if she is safe at home." That fact is all too true. The home is the foundation for a young person and the love and care which follow him are his constant inspiration and guide.

Here are a number of rules which are an inspiration to the college student—to make him constantly searching for the noblest which is offered to him.

1. Go to seek and find the best.
2. Be willing to give and serve to the greatest of your capacity.
3. Learn everything that there is to learn and learning is not restricted to books, but includes friendships and associations, religious training, and social experience.
4. Don't be afraid to work.
5. Realize that the more you learn the more there is to learn. The knowledge which comes should only serve as a key to greater and broader possibilities.
6. Don't lose sight of values. The egotism or over-sophistication or, on the other hand, inferiority which frequently enter the consciousness of the young college student are devastating to his plans and to his hopes and ambitions, as well as his friendships.

7. Don't lose your ideals. Let your college experience be the means of raising these standards, rather than of lowering them.

INKLINGS

Gee, ain't it an awful crime
That seniors high and mighty
Should, in so short a time,
Be freshmen, green and flighty?

I turned this much talked of word "orientation" over and over in my mind, and marveled. My dictionary said to orientate was to place so as to face the east, to determine one's position with reference to the east. Easy enough—I can tell any Freshman the points of the compass but I'd feel a bit foolish doing it. It would be rather an insult to the new comer's intelligence.

Friend Webster's next helpful hint to a helpless human was a coy little definition of the noun "orientation": the finding of the east point so as to get one's bearings. That, I could understand a little better. Still, getting one's bearings seemed to imply previous loss of equilibrium, and really the freshmen looked properly balanced.

The next choice bit was: the faculty (I could understand that) possessed by certain birds (faculty? birds?) of finding their way home from certain places. Now while "bird" may be a complimentary epithet, still it hardly has sufficient dignity to be befitting one embarked upon the perilous sea of college life. As for finding their way home, it seemed to me that was exactly what all this orientation business was to prevent.

All of a sudden, quite without warning, and all joking, flippancy, and ribald commentary aside, I found the definition. Orientation is the ability to find and hold the right mental attitude toward a subject. In the words of Mr. Milner, "Could there be a bigger task?"

A little girl tripped up to me. She wore a short dress, long curls, a hair ribbon, a bewildered but willing look on her face. By a process of subtle deduction and an application of all known sleuthing methods, I arrived at the conclusion that here was a freshman in the flesh. I beamed upon her benignly, patted her head, and asked helpfully, "What may I do for you, little one?"

"Thank you very much for your solicitude, I appreciate it. However, I was not intending to ask you for information or assistance. I was merely proceeding to the administration building, where I am heavily involved in the processes of registration, orientation, and acclimation."

I had to be carried off.

We understand that D. Culbertson has sold stock in all five buildings, the campus and the graveyard to credulous young freshmen. As we go to press he is said to be interesting a group of verdant ones in buying shares in a new company organized to buy and sell options on choice library seats.

He also wishes us to announce that a few chapel seats may be still had for nominal prices. Buy now!

First Freshman: "Can you imagine—that dumb freshman over there thought the football coach had four wheels! Can you feature that?"

Second Unfortunate: "No, really! And how many does the bally thing have?"

The opening of the new Burriss school at Muncie, Ind., marks the realization of one of the biggest plans of Ball State Teachers College. The school includes kindergarten and the first nine grades, and will be used as a demonstration and experimental school on the campus of the Teacher's College.

The building is of Gothic architecture to correspond with the other new college buildings, and was named for a former college president. The faculty will be headed by Dr. Earl A. Johnson.

Assurance of world peace by education was the keynote of the recent national education conference held at Geneva, Switzerland. Dean H. L. Smith, head of the department of education at Indiana University, and Chas. F. Miller, superintendent of Indianapolis school were delegates of the National Education Association. They reported that "it is the purpose of the conference to encourage educational methods which will give pupils a clearer understanding of the habits, the customs and the problems of peoples of other nations, thereby preventing the misunderstandings that arise and lead to wars."

A new dictaphone equipment has been purchased by the commercial college of Ball State Teacher's College. The entire outfit consists of dictator, transcriber, and shaver which makes it possible to use records again. Professir Studebaker, head of the commerce department, has equipped it with the very latest in office supplies.

Friends University of Wichita, Kansas, opens this year with a large enrollment and bright prospects. A great improvement for the year is the completion of Alumni Hall, the general assembly room, said to be one of the very best in Kansas.

One of the most beautiful new art schools of the country was opened recently at the John Herron Art Institute at Indianapolis. Its beauty and perfect adaption to its purposes were especially remarked upon by Evans Woolen on the opening night. The school has been most carefully planned and executed, and will be an excellent addition to the buildings of the city.

A bill has been introduced into the Senate by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, which calls for the creation of a separate department of public education with a secretary of education in the President's Cabinet.

Indiana University started registration yesterday and expect to enroll 4,000 students. Social events have been in full swing since Wednesday.

Fifteen hundred freshmen are being oriented at Purdue University. Freshmen have been in attendance all this week.

Notre Dame has refused admission year. The school is overcrowded, and only those who rank in the upper third of their high school graduating classes have been accepted. Classes were begun on Thursday.

DePauw University class work begins Sept. 16. A large increase was registered in the liberal arts college, which is prepared to care for 700 students. It is expected that the total enrollment in the university will be 1,800.

Manchester College classes began on Tuesday, when the enrollment of 450 students was completed.

Des Moines University, which has been the scene of struggle between board and students, has definitely ended its career and has been placed in the hands of a receiver. The school was closed last year after an egg-throwing riot, but was opened in order that graduates might take their degrees.

A new music school, the Arthur Jordan Conservatory, affiliated with Butler University, is opening this year. It promises to be the best in the middle west, and has in its teaching corps the best talent of this section of the country. A large curriculum and modern equipment insures its success.

MRS. ROBINSON
TEMPORARILY

To Act in Physical Education Dept.
During Illness of Miss
Comstock

GRADUATE OF EARLHAM

Mrs. Francis Robinson is acting as Women's Physical Director for a few weeks during the absence of Miss Comstock, who is recuperating from a recent illness.

Mrs. Robinson was formerly Miss Eleanor Henley, who graduated from Earlham in 1926. Mrs. Robinson has acted as Physical Director at Moorestown Friends' Boarding School, at Moorestown, N. J., during the past three years.

We have just discovered that Inklings has turned a pale green, and as that's an awfully sickly color, rest and recuperation is necessary.

NEW PRESIDENT

From 1917-1919, President Dennis served the Chinese Government in Peking as its legal advisor. During the residence of the family in the Chinese capital, Mrs. David Worth Dennis of this city spent some time with them at Peking.

William C. Dennis was married in 1909 to Agnes Kirkland Barker, who has made many friends in Richmond on their occasional visits here. Mr. and Mrs. Dennis have two children, a son, David Worth, who will enter Earlham as a freshman and a daughter, Catherine Emmeline, who is in high school.

He is an active member of the American Society of International Law, and is also a member of the board of editors of the American Journal of International Law, to which he is a well known contributor.

ADVICE TO FRESHMEN

"BE YOURSELF"

Be natural, that's the thing to be. Burry all this bunk about sophistication and impression and try to be the "just graduated student" you are.

College expects you to be green; the students anticipate it—don't disappoint them by trying to acquire the "college air" and "college swag" because you simply can't get in step that way.

Observation aids greatly in any beginner's life. One of your many duties will be observing upper classmen and perhaps a sophomore or two, should they distinguish themselves enough for notice. By observation, I do not mean that you necessarily need to be dishonest in your thinking and doing. As the "Intercollegian" so well puts it, "There may be nothing intrinsically wrong in wearing your friend's hat or in borrowing his coat, but there is mental laziness and dishonesty in using his thoughts as your own or borrowing his ideas without weighing them against your own convictions. Because his background has been different from yours he will undoubtedly have something to give you which should provoke your own thinking but not take its place.

"Hunt out the field of study in which you are most interested and put your best mental energy into it; find the sport that thrills you most; seek the spiritual expression that makes you the happiest—then you will "be yourself" to your own satisfaction and to the glory of your campus."

should make him an extremely fine back.

Conger "Boz" Reynolds, with two years' experience at fullback, will return to do the line plunging for the "Fighting Quakers". Reynolds is a hard hitter and was one of the best defensive backs on the Quaker roster last season.

Among the freshmen who will report for practice are several promising backs. Kastetter, of Hartford City, is a promising half or quarter, who has had a considerable amount of experience in high school grid circles. He should give some of the older men plenty of competition.

Taylor, of Scottsdale, Pa., is another promising backfield star. Let it be enough said when we say that Scottsdale is the home of the Felix brothers, and the abode of the famous "Country" Huntsman, who won undying fame for himself as an Earlham athlete. Huntsman is the coach of the Scottsdale team.

Wade, of Carmel, is a good speed merchant who should make things look bright on the gridiron this fall. His high school experience will be a great aid to him in his work with the Earlham squad.

Line prospects this year are not so good as in former years but with Captain Johnson to hold down one end of the line and Ellis to take care of one tackle birth there is little doubt but that Coach Ross will find capable men to fill the shoes of those who were graduated or did not return to school.

Wilson, Peacock, Oesting, Judkins, and Mason will bid fair to fill the shoes of these departing linemen.

Donald Parker, who will return to school after a year's leave of absence, is a promising guard whose experience and grit should make a place for him on the team. It will be remembered that "Don" was the fellow who hit so hard in 1928, but was forced to leave the game at mid-season because of a wrenched back.

Promising Freshmen linemen are Hepworth, of Oakwood School, at Oakwood, New York. Hepworth is a tackle or center. If he plays center all we can ask is that he plays like an old schoolmate of his, "Bob" Fathery, who is so well remembered by those of us who were here in '27. Others are Beeson, Chenoweth, Metcalf, Stanley, and Francis Peacock, a brother to George.

These men will have to work extremely hard to get in shape for the first game of the season with the "Big Red" team of Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, September 28. Then comes Rose Poly at home, on October 5; DePauw at Greencastle, on Oct. 12; Franklin here for homecoming, on Oct. 19; Manchester at North Manchester on Oct. 26; Indiana Central at home on November 2; Hanover, there, on Nov. 16, and the last game of the season with the University of Louisville at Louisville, Kentucky, on the 16th of November.

On looking over this schedule we find there are two schools that Earlham has not done battle with for a number of years. We believe there was a time when Earlham competed with Miami, but can not recall any time when the University of Louisville has been on the schedule.

DePauw is a rival of long standing that the "Fighting Quakers" have nearly conquered in the last two years. Rose Poly is a school that has not done so well in the last few years but always bears watching. Indiana Central is a bitter name on the tongue of any Quaker football man of the last two years.

Earlham has been successful in downing Hanover for the past several years, but this has not always been so. They always have a good team in the field, so Coach Ross and his men can expect a battle from the men from down on the banks of the Ohio River.

All in all we would say that this schedule will be a very interesting one. At least it is the most strenuous that the Quakers have attempted for some time. But we feel sure that Coach Ross and his men will make their usual fine showing.

One of the most active of campus organizations to which Freshmen girls are introduced during Freshman Week is the Women's Athletic Association. This is a group of which every girl who is enrolled in the college is a member.

This body is headed during the coming year by Ruth Bunker, with Miss Comstock, Physical Director for Women, and Miss Burton, Assistant Physical Director as sponsors.

The point system with awards is an interesting feature of the organization which offers opportunities for aspiring Freshmen girls.

Hockey, basket ball, baseball, archery, tennis, track, golf, hiking and swimming compose the sports program for the year.

meet in separate groups. Mr. Milner will have charge of the men's group, and Mrs. Milner will instruct the women.

One of the most attractive courses of the entire curriculum is offered this year in the form of "International Law and Relations." President Dennis will act as instructor for this course. It will be repeated the second semester. The course includes the study of important international problems, methods of world organization, including the League of Nations and the World Court.

Introductory Psychology is offered the first semester and repeated the second. Social Psychology and Child Psychology are offered as possible courses to complete the year of Psychology.

These changes are not only interesting but are extremely valuable as improvements of the present curriculum.
