

— Mary Cowgill and Leona Wright entertained several of the girls in their room, on the evening before Thanksgiving.

— Mrs. Russel and Gertrude Simmons, accompanied by Miss Moore, went to Cincinnati on the 23d to have their eyes treated.

— Chas. Cosand went to Indianapolis on the 27th to meet with the Executive Committee of the Indiana State Oratorical Association.

— Mrs. Anna Townsend Kelsey, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Murray Wildman, at Spiceland, visited the college on the 18th.

— Supt. Harkness, accompanied by C. G. Carpenter, of the city, were at Cincinnati on the 13th, on business in the interest of the college.

— Earlham Hall now possesses a 5470 lb. safe, purchased for joint use of Indiana Yearly Meeting, in preserving its records, and for the college.

— The foot-ball 's in the attic,
Likewise the spiked shoe;
And celebrated half-backs
Are looking very blue.

— C. R. Hadley attended the State College Press Association on Thanksgiving day and spent the latter part of the week at his home in Indianapolis.

— The Prohibition Oratorical Contest is approaching, and from all reports it will be a very interesting one. Quite a number are preparing orations.

— Many have been weighed and found wanting — on the new scales? No! Over in the President's office. Better call and inquire to what class you belong.

— Christmas moves on apace. It is reported that the members of the Male Quartette invested in table linen when at Milton. Is it this, or something more serious?

— The turkeys did not roost so high but that Earlham Hall secured its share, and presented to the students who remained at college a typical Thanksgiving dinner.

— News reached the students a day or two since that the Board intended removing the general office to Lindley Hall. A petition, signed by nearly two hundred students, was sent to the Board early Monday morning, requesting that the general office remain in Earlham Hall as it is now located.

— A part of Mr. Henry McKinley's congregation from Spring Creek, under his supervision, examined the different points of interest about the college on Saturday, two weeks ago.

— It is safe to surmise that no small part of the thankful spirit which pervaded the college atmosphere was due to the boxes which a number of students received, filled with home goodies.

— Misses Nellie and Celia Wood, Elizabeth and Louise Wilson, Bertha Johnson and Beulah Hutchinson, attended a reception in the city, on Saturday, the 23d, given by Mrs. Webster Parry in honor of Miss Rich, of Wichita, Kansas.

— The first year French class were well pleased with their Thanksgiving present, which was the permission to have one of their grades in a recent quiz taken off the record. We are too considerate to tell why they were pleased by this arrangement.

— Prof. Russell delivers an address at Carthage, "The World for Christ; What are you doing about it?" on the 30th, and gives a talk on "Systematic Preparation for Preaching," at Knightstown on the 29th, in the conference of Ministers of the Indiana Yearly Meeting.

— A broad and contagious smile went over the dining room last Saturday evening, and the cause of that hearty and expressive sign of welcome was the unexpected appearance of Isaiah Furnas, who took a short vacation from his work in Indianapolis to visit old friends at Earlham. He gives very enthusiastic accounts of his work there.

— Dr. Gerber recently made quite a fine present to the Greek department in the form of some valuable pictures, illustrating Grecian art and architecture, which will be a much appreciated addition to this department. He increased the appreciation for the pictures by giving a lecture on them before the Greek and Latin classes, on the evening of the 25th.

— The campus shows the effect of Æolus having been out in one of his frisky moods the other night. Two of the trees were blown down, the observatory roof damaged, two of the windows broken out of Lindley Hall, and limbs scattered everywhere. There's nothing like making all the students feel at home here, even if some of them are from Kansas. Selah!
